ASHRAE Standards 189.1 and 90.1: Green Building and Energy Efficiency

Date and Time: 24 March 2015 (Tue), 7:30pm to 9:30pm (registration start at 7:00pm)

Venue: Lecture Theatre LT02, Institute of Vocational Education (Morrison Hill)
6 Oi Kwan Road, Wanchai

Abstract:

This seminar will introduce the ASHRAE Standards 189.1 and 90.1 which are key references in the world on green building and energy efficiency. The purpose and basic principles of the standards will be described. Their major requirements and characteristics will be explained. Also, the relationship of these standards to green building assessment and building energy codes will be discussed.

Speaker:

Dr. Sam C. M. Hui is a Lecturer of the Department of Mechanical Engineering, The University of Hong Kong. He is a Chartered Engineer in building services engineering, a Certified Energy Manager and a Certified Building Energy Modeling Professional. He has over 24 years experience in the study of energy efficiency in buildings and sustainable building technology. He has acted as a Technical Expert in building energy code and green building assessment projects in Hong Kong, Mainland China and Thailand. He has also developed academic courses and research to promote energy efficient and sustainable buildings. His current research interests include building energy performance, sustainable building design, green roof systems and zero/low carbon buildings.

He was the President of the ASHRAE (American Society of Heating, Refrigerating and Air-Conditioning Engineers) Hong Kong Chapter in 2006-2007. He was elected as a Distinguished Lecturer of ASHRAE U.S. Headquarters for 2009-2011.
